Fantastic Ideas for unforgettable performancesBy A CustomerOnce you've read the ideas in this book, you can create a puppet sidekick for your Magic act that will never be forgotten. Beware: this sidekick could very well become more famous than YOU! Lots of great ideas to spark your imagination toward developing a whispering rabbit-in-the-hat puppet. No ventriloquism and very little puppetry skill required--but like anything worth doing, you've got to practice this stuff to make it work.

This instructional book reveals the mysteries about using a "rabbit in the hat" puppet. Magician/puppeteer Douglas L. Wathen shares from his own experiences with this little character. Includes ideas for character development, props, routines, audience involvement, and more. With such simple ingredients, a wonderful world of unforgettable ministry opportunities unveils itself before your eyes with blessings bestowed upon performer and audience alike.

About the Author Douglas L. Wathen, the Magicianary, has been using the rabbit in the hat puppet for many years with great success and enthusiasm, to the delight of audiences of all ages and many different backgrounds. Doug lives in the Denver, Colorado area and has been the president of the Rocky Mountain Chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Magicians. He enjoys music, drama, magic, comedy, puppetry, woodworking, and performing. Excerpt. Reprinted by permission. All rights reserved. Somewhere in the world there is a gathering of people. These people are not so different from anyone else, except that laughter can be heard. Teenagers are smiling, children are shouting, parents are happy and lessons are being learned. Joy is in the air, and then the crowd spontaneously bursts into thunderous applause, all because of a small white rabbit that never says a word. The rabbit has captured everyone in its spell. The rabbit is not magical; it is not even alive. It is a puppet, a small inanimate collection of fake fur and stuffing, and an ordinary black hat, with well... an absorbing personality! With such simple ingredients you will find a wonderful world of unforgettable ministry opportunities unveils itself before your very eyes with blessings bestowed upon performer and audience alike. Welcome to the unlimited realm of the Rabbit in the Hat Puppet! Always keep in mind that the rabbit in the hat puppet has no limitations, and can be whatever you want it to be. The bunny can be a boy or a girl, a puppet that talks or a silent character. Your bunny could be one that is bashful, outgoing, a trouble maker, or a hero. Whatever you want it to be, that's what it will be. After all, it is YOUR PUPPET, your program, and your personality that you are working with. Just accept the fact now that the puppet will always upstage you, get more laughs and the most applause, and you will do fine. You should also keep in mind that the personality of the puppet should compliment the personality of the puppeteer so that you blend together as a team.
