When filmmaker Matt Black interviews current artists, it's personal. His perceptive queries prompt artists to reveal intriguing pieces of their journeys. Jeff Koons explains the childhood experiences that made his art possible; Damien Hirst shares the motivation behind his spot paintings. These twenty-one conversations are casual, comfortable, and insightful. Illustrated with the artists' work, artists in their studios, and shots from Black's video interviews, Reflections: In Conversation with Today's Artists is a unique foray from the printed page into the world of the cinematic, and a work of art in itself.
