Many of the games in this book are fun to play and can be played with a variety of people in all kinds of settings. However, saying that there are 50 different games in this book is misleading; a lot of the games are a variation of the book's other games with only a slight difference in gameplay and scoring. A few of them I recognize as variation of older existing games (so not being very original) but most of them I had not heard of before. I always enjoy learning new games :) The variety of games is however small, a big portion, I'd say more than half, of them are based on guessing what other people wrote or will write during the game. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful.

#nohashtaggingnecessary By Customer This collection of original, easy to play games gets a 5 star rating from me! There are so many opportunities to unplug and play that we all miss because we're too tethered to our cell phones. Most everybody likes to play games, but now phones and electronics are used to fill in the gaps of boredom. I'll admit, I was not good company at dinner parties, holidays, even dinner with my own family! But I convinced my kids to give Unplug and Play a try and we never looked back. The games are quick so we can play at dinner, in the car, before bed, pretty much any time we wish! It's really a great way to spend some quality time together with friends and family, while not staring like a zombie at our phones, waiting for the next dumb meme or facebook post. Get it, you won't regret it! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Game On! By Customer Our family loves this book!!!

Anything that can get teenagers (I have two) to put down their phones for any extended period of time deserves more than five gold stars!! We take it on extended road trips and on vacation so that we can always have something fun to do...we also love to play the games when we have new people over to the house and we need a conversation starter or something interesting to do after dinner...great ice breaker! I am also convinced for the over 50 set (yes to that too) these kinds of games can do for the mind what crossword puzzles are supposed to do...brain exercise!! Enjoy!!
