You can't help falling in love with these 20 challenging visual puzzles! Look for the King and others in the drawings while reading interesting anecdotes about his life. Each art spread offers a list of things to find, followed by narrative about Presley's life in the depicted time period. From his humble beginnings to serving in the U.S. Army to Graceland, this book covers all things Elvis in the fun artwork of Victor Beuren and the writing of Andrew Grant Jackson. You'll be all shook up by one of the best-selling solo artists in history!

About the AuthorAndrew Grant Jackson has written for Yahoo!, music magazines Burn Lounge, Mean Street, and Dispatch, the Hollywood monthly magazine Ingenue, and Baselines Studio System, the leading online database and research service for the film and television industries. He directed and co-wrote the feature film The Discontents (2004) starring Perry King and Amy Madigan and served as a Development Associate at actor Jeff Bridges AsIs Productions. Andrew's books include Where's Ringo?, 1965: The Most Revolutionary Year in Music (acclaimed by the Washington Post, Huffington Post, and excerpted by Slate), and Still the Greatest: The Essential Songs of the Beatles' Solo Careers (recommended by USA Today and excerpted on Rolling Stone.com). He lives and works in Los Angeles, CA.Victor Beuren is a freelance illustrator living in Santa Catarina, Brazil. He has worked with advertising art direction for over 12 years and with freelance illustration for six years. In 2014, Victor received recognition from AI-AP (American Illustration-American Photography) in the category of Latin American Illustration, chosen as one of "The Ten" (Los Diez) in the show. Victor made the switch to become a full time artist in 2015. Victor's art is influenced by pop art, games, family, and friends and is created entirely in ink, watercolor, or digital media. He's often listening to Sertanejo music while he works.
